

Yasmeen Olass is a senior at Delaware State University, majoring in Biochemistry and minoring in Psychology. She is a dedicated student leader actively engaged in numerous student organizations and a proud member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. Yasmeen is passionate about healthcare, aspiring to become a dentist while maintaining an interest in anesthesiology, with a focus on increasing representation of Black females in medicine and serving underserved communities.

A committed scholar with a 3.85 GPA, she gains practical experience through research, internships including at Harvard University and other esteemed institutions and mentorship, guiding high school students in STEM and professional development. Yasmeen values leadership, community service, and personal growth, and she actively engages in initiatives that promote mental health, social justice, and professional development. Her dedication to learning, advocacy, and mentorship reflects her commitment to making a meaningful impact both on campus and in the broader community.